Net Neutrality is an immensely important requirement to a free and open internet. It allows companies that use the internet to be able to compete unhindered. The ISPs don't need any more protection, they already have an oligopoly. To say that less restrictions are needed and that the ISPs will sort things out themselves is absurd.

I oppose the repealing of Net Neutrality. I will vote against anyone who votes for it, and I will do my best to convince everyone I know to do the same. The only reasons for supporting the repeal of net neutrality are ignorance, or bribery from these ISPs over the welfare of the American people.